

8.2 Connection Test Items to Prepare for Joining NACCS

Prior to conducting a connection test, each user is required to have the hardware and other details in place in addition to their company's own server. Table 8.2.1 shows the hardware and other details that users need to prepare.

Table 8.2.1 Hardware and Details That Users Need to Prepare

Hardware, software, etc.	Instructions
(1) NACCS Connection Router	When using the following Processing Modes, apply to NACCS Center for the installation of access lines. NACCS Center will arrange NACCS Connection Router. Interactive Processing Mode (SMTP Two-Way) E-mail Style Processing Mode (SMTP/POP3)
(2) Access line	When using the following Processing Modes, apply to NACCS Center for the installation of access lines. Interactive Processing Mode (SMTP Two-Way) E-mail Style Processing Mode (SMTP/POP3)
(3) LAN cable, etc.	For connecting the user's system to the NACCS Connection Router ○ GW (SMTP/POP3 or SMTP Two-Way)LAN cables and other items that users should provide
(4) NACCS Center ping IP address (including that for a connection test) (Note)	To be notified or sent by NACCS Center after the application.
(5) NACCS Center ping IP address for DNS functions (Note)
(6) NACCS Center IP address for DNS functions
(7) Domain name for NACCS Center server (including that for a connection test)
(8) User's e-mail address (including that for a connection test) (Note)
(9) User Code, Identifying Numbers, password (including that for a connection test)
(10) Digital Certificates (netAPI user)
(11) Connection Test Implementation Procedures
(12) Procedure Specifications/EDI Specifications (this document)	Refer to the Procedure Specifications and EDI Specifications posted on NACCS Information as needed.

(Note) NACCS Center notifies a domain name and an e-mail address for each server (*) according to the processing mode.

User using following Processing Mode will be notified the following information.

- Users using the Management Document Information retrieval (user's system)
 - Users will be notified “URL of NACCS Center (including that for a connection test)” instead of “Domain name (including that for a connection test)” and “User's e-mail address (including that for a connection test)”.